Went through each system and house with him. It was an agreeable meeting, and he answered my questions. In general, I found systems to be installed substantially as per plans and have a bullet list of checklist items for him to finalize for issuance of COCs. The yellow tanks do have documentation/state approval, even though they need to be treated carefully when pumped (pumped halfway/refilled immediately? Have to get more detailed maintenance recommendation from Mfg). He says he has an engineer to sign off, as he and Mike Parsons are no longer working together.
